Message from the Guest Editors

The mining industry is still playing a significant role in supplying resources needed for the modern post-industrial society, such as critical raw materials. Recent problems with supply chains have focused attention on the security of raw materials and increased extraction of resources from European deposits. The 5th Polish Mining Congress is the most important forum for meetings between representatives of science and industry in the broadly understood area of mining.

The congress will be held under the slogan:

Mining industry of the 21st century—how to extract and process mineral and energy resources while protecting the climate and the environment?

Submissions are invited from authors presenting at the 5th Polish Mining Congress. Authors are encouraged to submit their work for this Special Issue.
